

Reflection paper

I was a day late coming into class, but I didn't expect to have a quiz immediately and I was surprised, that it was online, and it was a fun first experience for me for this class. Since it was the first week of school there wasn't any formal discussion yet, but my memory was refresh with the concept of the flowchart. I never coded in my entire life, so I was nervous and excited in the same time when I enter the computer lab. I hope the following weeks I can learn more in the world of computer language and coding.
